Let’s eat and drink healthily
Did you know that what we eat and drink can affect our cancer risk?

Eating healthily has loads of benefits, helping you keep a healthy weight and feel good on the inside. And it helps reduce the risk of cancer too.

In this leaflet we’ll tell you where to start, and give you tips to help along the way.

So let’s get going.
1. What’s on your plate?

Get the right balance. That’s probably something you’ve heard before, but what exactly does a healthy plate of food look like?

Let’s take a look.

At meal times aim to:

- Fill half of your plate with colourful vegetables
- Fill a quarter with high fibre foods like brown rice, whole wheat pasta or whole grain bread
- Fill a quarter with a healthy protein like fish, fresh chicken or pulses like beans and lentils

What changes could you make to your favourite meals?
2. Eat more of these

Keep yourself healthy by making sure these foods are a regular part of your diet.

- Foods high in fibre

  Try beans or whole grains like brown rice and whole wheat pasta, which can reduce the risk of bowel cancer by helping poo pass through the body regularly and easily.

- Fruit and vegetables

  They’re low in calories, high in fibre and are full of vitamins and minerals.

3. Eat less of these

These are some of the foods that can increase the risk of cancer, so try not to eat them too often.

- High calorie foods

  Things like fried food, puddings and sugary sweets can make you put on weight.

- Processed and red meat

  Meats like ham, salami and beef contain chemicals that can increase the risk of cancer.

If you follow these tips most of the time, there’s nothing wrong with having the odd treat.
4. Avoid getting caught out

Food companies can make products seem healthier than they really are.

- Don’t believe the hype that only specific things are ‘superfoods’. All fresh fruit and veg is good for you.
- More expensive or organic meats aren’t necessarily healthier options. All processed and red meats increase the risk of cancer.

5. Take simple steps

Here are some simple tips to help you on your way to healthier eating.

Meat-free Mondays

Or whichever day suits you.

Snack smarter

Have snacks like fruit and plain nuts to hand, at home and when you’re out and about.

Switch to healthier proteins

Try swapping processed and red meat for fresh chicken, fish or beans.

Freezing is pleasing

Fruit, veg and pulses don’t need to be fresh – frozen and tinned count towards your five-a-day too.
The word ‘diet’ probably makes you think about food, but what you drink is important too.

Drinking any type of alcohol increases the risk of cancer. This is because our bodies break it down into a toxic chemical that damages our DNA.

So if you do drink, it’s best to stick within the guidelines of no more than 14 units a week.

The less alcohol you drink, the lower the risk of cancer.

7. Try these handy tips

There are plenty of ways to help yourself cut down on alcohol. Why not give these a go?

- Less is better
  Choose a smaller glass or lower strength drink.

- Take time off
  Have some alcohol-free days each week.

- Buddy up
  Agree to cut down with a friend or family member and help each other stick to the plan.

- Don’t stock up
  Only buy alcohol when you plan to drink it.

- Track it
  Making a note of your drinks can help you keep an eye on how much you’re drinking. You can even use an online tracker or app.

Watch out for sugar in drinks

Drinks can be higher in calories than you might expect. Especially things like fizzy or energy drinks or high street coffees.

Take care with fruit juices and smoothies too. They are also high in sugar, so try not to have more than one small glass a day.

Make water your first choice. Try adding fresh lemon and lime or give sugar-free squash a go.
